

Today on this day,

The loving soldiers of WW1,
Have died for us with pride,
The medals the children and all the soldiers will lay in our hearts of remembrance.

Flinders Field, the Land of ours,

The place where the Soldier's hearts soar,

We wear poppies to show respect,

Today on the 11th month, 11th day, 11th hour,

We stop and reflect for 2 minutes

And pray for peace throughout the world

~ Jossiana, 2020.

Today is the day we start with silence
For today is the day that ended the violence,
On this day we wear our poppies with pride
To remember the people that have died,
The dead people that are now ghosts
Are now the people we love the most,
Even though the wars over and we have won
We still can not forget what our enemies have done,
On the 11th of November 1918 the war ended
As our relationships of who we fought have mended,
The poppies that grew on the battlefield
Have had their relationship with this day sealed.
